STATE NEWS.

The democrats of Madison have renominated their best looking man for mayor-Mayor Brashear.

George Smith, tried at Madison for killing Daniel Snyder, was yesterday sentenced by the jury to ten years in the penitentiary. Smith's accomplice, John McDonald, previously tried, got but three years' sentence.

John R. Coffroth was yesterday nominated for congress by the ninth district democratic convention at Frankfort. He telegraphed his declination, but the convention had adjourned. Leroy Templeton was put in nomination by the nationals.

Andrew Marshall's fine farm residence, three miles north of Argos, was burned yesterday noon, together with most of the contents. Mr. Marshall was very seriously burned while attempting to put out the fire. Loss $25,000, with no insurance.

Elias Cooms, of Darlington, came home and found his wife in a compromising situation with a strange man. He went off and got drunk and came back to take revenge. In the row which followed, the wife stabbed Elias in the abdomen with a butcher knife, inflicting a probably fatal wound.

The Labor Troubles in England. London, May 2.—A telegram from Blackburn says the lockout contemplated by the masters will embrace the main artery, 70 miles long, from Ulverton to Colne, with branches far and wide. The strike is mostly ended at Church and Accrington, but elsewhere the spirit is becoming more uncompromising. The masters declare that they have gained to the extent of 10 per cent. by clearing off their the extent of 10 per cent. by clearing the extent of 10 per cent, by clearing off their surplus stocks at better prices than could have been obtained if the mills had been working. From two to three thousand weavers met at Darwen, yesterday, and reaffirmed that they would only accept reduced wages if coupled with reduced time, and would not even communicate with the masters at present. A disturbance occurred at Burnley last night. The operatives of one mill who accepted the reduction were hooted and pelted.

The Cimbria's Mission Explained.

CRONSTADT, May 2.—It is stated that several steamers lying at Revel have been purchased by the Russian government for the purpose of being converted into cruisers. Three vessels which left Revel a week ago are the property of the Russian admiralty, and have gone to America to receive their armaments, which will be provided by American firms, and to receive on hoard sea-

American firms, and to receive on board seamen who departed a short time ago.

PORTLAND, May 2.—The British consulhere has gone to the southwest harbor to watch the movements of the steamship Cimbria bria.

The First Gun for Investigation Washington, May 2.—During last night's session of the house of representatives Lockwood advocated the passage of the Kimmell bill to investigate the late presidential election based upon the Blair resolution. He could not subscribe to the policy of some democrate that it were to the policy of some democrats that it were better to let the matter stand as it was, and said if congress failed to investigate it would become a party to the fraud. This is the first speech delivered on the subject.

Appointment of Temporary Clerks, Washington May 2.—In accordance with a law recently passed for the employment of temporary clerks, between 60 and 70 persons were yesterday appointed to such positions in the treasury department. The appointments were determined by the completeness of the quotas of the different states. A large number of clerks have also been restored to the interior department under the recent appropriations.

Washingten, May 2.—House—Mr. Reagan, rising to a question of privilege, sent to the clerk's deek and had read an article charging him with acting in bad faith with regard to the bill preventing discrimination by common carriers, and insinuating that he had been bought over by corporations. He denied that his ardor in support of the bill had cooled. The reason be had not reported the bill when the committee on commerce had been called had been because he had been instructed to report minor bills, so as to make the way clear for the freight discrimination bill. This fact in relation to his action should show he had earnestly exerted himself to secure the passage of the bill, That there was not a statement in the article that was not a statement was not a statement w A bill reorganizing the life saving service of the whole and made the special order for May 9th. A Case of Punishment at Shelbyville—A. Little Girl Terribly Mistreated. [Special to The Indianapelis News.]
SHELSYVILLE, May 2.—The inhuman treatment of little Lillie Wagner, a girl not more than 14 years old, is the only topic of discussion in all circles. Threats of lynching and tar and feathering are freely indulged in. The causes of the persecution are said to have been the hatred of the child's stepmother, who states that she could not ensure the nasty little brat in the house, and the desire of her father to put her out of the way to possess himself of her grandfather's inheritance. He had kept her looked up in the cellar of his residence for several weeks peat, and otherwise mistreated her. The city marshal, accompanied by a large posse of citizens, proceeded to Wagner's house between eight and nine o'clock and demanded the girl. With considerable reflectance ahe was surrendered. Wagner is a man of wealth and the proprietor of extensive marble yards here. The worsan in the case is his third wife. Lifly is a child of the first marriage, and inherited considerable property from her mother. Wagner appeared on the street shortly after the child left the house, and was immediately surrounded by an infuriated crowd, whose calls for rope, are and feathers and shot-guns caused him to speedify retreat. THE MEXICAN REVOLUTION." An Attempt to Cross the Border De-feated.

[Special to the Cincinsus Enquires.]

Houston, Texas, May 2.—The particulars and result of the attempted invasion of Tamaulipas by 200 Lerdoists, mentioned last night, are as follows: The invasion was attempted at Isidoro, on the Rio Grande. The 50 men who crossed were commanded by the Lerdoist chief tain Rappel Lira. After crossing, the Lerdoists were met by a body of regular soldiers from Matamoras, and a fight ensued, which resulted in two of the Lerdoists being killed, two wounded and eight prisoners. Three were drowned in the river, The captured Lerdoists were carried to Matamoras. The balance of the command are thought to have crossed higher up.

To-day General E. O. C. Ord, commanding the department of Texas, in conversation with a reporter, expressed his belief that Mexico is on the eve of a general revolution against Diaz, and that the United States will become involved in the war. General Ord said he intended going into Mexico, and wanted Governor Hubbard and the Texas Rangers and Minute Men to go with him. Speaking of Mexican outrages on the people of Texas, General Ord said: "I'll be damned if I don't intend to protect these people."

It is understood that General Ord has instructed his officers to push into Mexico whenever necessary.

THE New York Sun says: "If Mr Hayes was fairly elected, then he should be permitted to retain the office to the end of the term. But it is very generally believed that he was not elected. How, then, are we to decide?" We decided once. It

THERE is little of news but plenty of opinions on the foreign situation. English opinion is that there is no alternative for the submission of the San Stefano treaty and the discussion thereof on the basis of the treaties of 1856 and 1871. Russian opinion is that there will be a war.

CONCERNING the bell punch the San Francisco Chronicle says:

It is certain that if such a law could be enforced in this city, with its 2,500 saloons and dram shops, it would yield a very large revenue—possibly more than half a million dollars—and for the state at large more than a million. In this way the vice of drinking would centribute to the education of the rising generation and to the support of asylums for the insane and other public institutions so largely recruited from the votaries

The republican party in Indiana is like Dr. Mary Walker's pantaloons—bifurcated near-ly to the waistband now, and if the agitation onlines the pants will be entirely severed. The cause of this dreadful state of affairs is the question of indorsing or denouncing Hayes's course when the convention meets in June.—[Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Enquirer, we think, evolved this inelegant and inaccurate assertion from its inner consciousness. We have seen no evidences of republican bifurcation. The papers of the state, except The News, have not had the "sand" to speak their sentiments, if they have any, and the politicians have been as "shady" with their opinions as the candidates for office have been with their persons. But the party is in good shape and Secretary Thompson, during his visit here last month, said he found it in better heart than he expected. We think there will be no bifurcation of opinion. The southern settlement and specie payments are accomplished facts so far as they will concern the June convention, and we believe there is no antagonism to Hayes beyond individual disgruntlement here and there, and as the time has gone by when Indiana republicanism takes form and color to suit any "one man, it is highly probable the little squad of eastern soreheads who hate Hayes will be allowed to monopolize that doctrine, and the Indiana republicans will endorse him as having faithfully endeavored to carry out the Cincinnati platform.

It is not necessary to strain a point in order to say something good of John Mor-risey. He was without that hypocrisy which is so frequently a cloak for nom-inally better men than he, to do things he would not stoop to. Socially, part of the bottom layer of the inder crust, politically a product of the foulest methods that ever stuffed a ballot box or plundered a treasury; he was never accused of personal dishonesty. He was singularly truthful. His word was his honor. He paid his promises with the same scrupulosity he did his gamb-When he ling debts. a prize-fighter they say say he fought fair. At his gambling house there was no "sculduggery." In his new mode of life he was without pretension. In politics, except in later years, he was without force. In congress he never opened his mouth except to vote "aye" or "nay" with his party. At his own request he was put on a committee, that of revolutionary pensions, which had nothing to do. He made no attempt to legislate, and is said to have taken the office as a legacy for his son, who might have what consolution was to be drawn from a life which made amends by going from the prize ring to the highest legislative body of the country. Later he become a force in New York politics, and at his last election for the state senate beat Augustus Schell, an "eminently respectable" Tammany democrat, by the aid of the votes of pure and prominent republicans like Hamilton Fish There is nothing in his life to point a moral, except it be the demonstration it was of the wonderful apportunities which exist in this country, and this surely can be an encouragement for effort however small its beginning.

THE criminal court of this county has produced some remarkable things in its time, but probably the most extraordinary decision it ever gave birth to was the one acquitting Moriarty yesterday. This man raised a county order and drew $100 upon it. He confessed his guilt. His trial was kept off for months. When it came up it was not given to a jury, for conviction would have been certain. It is was left to the judge. This judge, Buskirk, has evolved a wonderful decision. It is in substance that Moriarty being deputy auditor had a right to sign the auditor's name to a warrant, though the warrant was false. He couldn't have forged it if he had wanted to. To get to this conclusion the judge has had to do a powerful sight of work; he has had to examine a host of authorities and to trace back the common law to its fountain head, It took a good while to do this, and he has had to delay his decision; but he has finally come out with it. The judge doesn't say that Moriarty did right; on the contrary, he thinks the legislature ought to make some kind of a law that would do what the English law don't. Some foolish people think the statute of Indiana does that pretty plainly, but the statute is nowhere by the side of crown law and its able construction. We pity the prosecutor who finds out that he is an ignoramus and who will have to confess himself incompetent if the legislature don't come to his aid. Now that there is a legal decision to the effect that deputy auditors can draw what warrants they choose upon the treasury, we may look for a large influx of county orders on the market. It might be well for the commissioners to sell worth of bonds at a good discount to provide funds so that official gentlemen in need of aid may not be compelled to submit to a shave.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The crack of doom is getting too wide for Hayes to straddle.—[Awful New York Sun. Hayes should stand on one side then and when all the southern claims are heard from he can dump them in and make a mountain where the crack of doom was, and complacently straddle again until 1881.

The ceremony of epening the great ex-position began at 2:30 o'clock yesterday

The crowd was immense and enthusias

The crowd was immense and enthusiastic in spite of the alternations of rain throughout the proceedings. Cries were everywhere heard of "Vive la republique," "Vive la France." Among those present were the prince of Wales; Don Francois d'Assise; the father of the king of Spain; the Duc D'Aosta, brother of the king of Italy and ex-king of Spain; Prince Fredcrick, crown prince of Denmark; the prince of Orange, heir apparent to the throne of the Netherlands, and Prince Henry of Holland. Marshal MacMahon arrived in the state carriage, escorted by arrived in the state carriage, escorted by his military household, troops being drawn up all along the route from the Champs Elysees. The procession was then form-ed, which marched from the grand arcade to the platform overlooking the fountain and commanding a view of nearly all the buildings and grounds. Here the marshal declared the exhibition opened. One hundred and one guns from the Invalides, Mont Valerian and Arista, on the Seine, followed the announcement. At the same time two military bands struck up, all the time two military bands struck up, all the fountains played, and the soldiers stationed by the flag staffs hoisted the flags of all nations on the roofs of the two palaces and annexes. The marshal then reascended the Trocadero palace, the procession reforming behind him, and after completing the round of the buildings crossed over the river to the Champ de Mars. Troops were drawn up on and near the bridge. The terrace of the Champ de Mars palace was occupied by the senators, deputies, council of state, magistrates, academicians, the mili-tary staff, and the French commissioners. tary staff, and the French commissioners. Entering by the central door the procession went through the grand vestibule decorated with crown jewels, Sevres porcelain, Gobelin tapestries, and the Prince of Wales's Indian collection. It then passed through all the sections, the commissioners of each country greeting it at the door, and next inspected the military school, where all the exhibition workmen were stationed, and lastly traversed the machinery annexes. Escorts of honor were stationed, and lastly traversed the machinery annexes. Escorts of honor were sent to the hotels of the presidents of the senate and chamber of deputies, the Prince of Wales, the crown prince of Denmark, Prince Amadeus, Prince Henry of Holland, the prince of Orange, and Don Francois d'Assise, to conduct them to the exhibition building. Arriving at the Trocadero palace. President MacMahon presentdero palace, President MacMahon presented to their royal highnesses all ministers, the officials connected with the exhibition, and several other distinguished personages. On the procession being formed the prince of Orange, the crown prince of Denmark and Prince Amadeus ranged themselves on the right of Marshal MacMahon, while the prince of Walss in the uniform while the prince of Wales in the uniform of the house guards, and Prince Henry of Holland, walked on the left of the presi-dent. The spectacle at the ceremony was magnificent. Perfect order prevailed. Ex-Queen Isabelia of Spain, witnessed the ceremonies from the gallery occupied by Madame MacMahon. The scene after the official declaration of the opening was imposing in the extreme. From the heights of Trocadero the thousands of guests assembled could see the crowds on the surrounding streets, the banks of the Seine and at Passy, both on the right and left: In front lay the immense area crowded with the exposition buildings, gaily deco-rated with flags of different nations, a grand cascade, and rows of statues illustrating the countries participating. A long line of equipages filled the road to the Champs and the Tuilleries, interspers with detachments of the mounted guards of Paris, the magnificent escorts of the visiting princes and the military house-hold of President McMahon. The daz-zling facade of the palace on the Champs de Mars was richly ornamented with national emblems, and in every assignable space the thousands of spectators were held in place by lines of infantry. The military display was less imposing than originally intended, as the minister of agriculture had decided, on the advice of engineers, that the recently constructed fer by the passage of cavalry and artil-lery. The sixth battalion of chasseurs did the honors of the Trocadero, saluting each section of the cortege on its arrival. the presidential procession, including the prince, diplomats, and other distinguished guests, reached the front of the palace of the Champs de Mars the scene was ex-tremely picturesque. The state bodies in grand uniform, the court councilors and magistrates in their robes, and the different bodies of the institute and legion of honor stood in strong contrast with the senators, deputies, clergy and minor offi-cials in their civil costumes. These, with the deputation from the army in full uniform, fell in with the presidential cottage, and moved through the East Indian hall into the grand central nave of the palace, crossing in rapid review the various foreign sections, and exchanging salutes with each of the commissioners, who stood in front of their respective sections. The procession then passed into the art galleries and then into the French section, which occupies one entire side of the palace. After the usual courtesies the president and party left by the Avenue Rapp gate and returned to the Elysee. As soon as the procession was out of view the brilliant company in the diplomatic gallery, head-ed by the duchess of Maganta ed by the duchess of Magenta and ex-Queen Isabella, filed out through the Trocadero palace, entered carriages and were driven away. Thousands of spectators then moved through the corridors of the palace, taking possession of the official tribune looking down upon the grand spectacle of the Exposition grounds, which were filled with depre masses of records.

Later the streets were impassable in many places in consequence of the immense crowds assembled to witness the illuminations. Many buildings in every quarter of the city were decorated with the flags of all nations. The American colors were abundantly and conspicuously displayed. For three hours every inch of space in the main thorough-fares, and every side street was fares and every side street was occupied by surging masses shouting and singing. The demonstrations frequently became semi-riotous.

Men, women and children of every class mingled indiscriminately in the crowd, which was occasionally enlivened by a rush of companies of half intoxicated youths and workmen bearing Chinese lanterns and singing the Marseillaise. Toward midnight many lights were extinguished, and the crowds began to disperse

On the 11th of October, 1877, the following account was presented to the commissioners of this county: "Marion county dr. to I. Hodgson, traveling expenses to New York and return, $53.96." The commissioners allowed the account on the same day, and Mr. Hodgson asked William C. Moriarty, deputy county auditor and clerk of the board of commissioners, to get this order cashed, to draw the money for him, as he was busy. An entry on the commissioners' book shows an order, "No. 17,227, allowed Isaac Hodgson fifty-three dollars and 96-100 cents (so written) for traveling expenses to N. Y. and return for gas fixtures, on the knowledge of the board." The register of orders drawn on the treasurer shows the same. On the order receipt book is this same order agreeing in number, date and amount. In this shape the order left the auditor's office in the hands of W. C. Moriarty, not as deputy auditor, but as the agent auditor's office in the hands of W. C. Moriarty, not as deputy auditor, but as the agent for Mr. Hodgson, in whose name he receipted for the order. In the afternoon, a few hours after this transaction, John L. Hanna, deputy county treasurer, finds in the treasury cash box the following warrant:

INDIANAPOLIS, October 11, 1877.

No. 17,227. Treasurer of Marlon county pay to Issac Hodgson one hundred and fitty-three dollars and ninety-six cents for expenses, going to New York to buy gas fixtures.

[Signed.]

Auditor of Marlan county.

W. K. SPROULE,
Auditor of Marion county. No one in the treasurer's office was able to Auditor of Marion county.

No one is the treasurer's office was able to say who took in the warrant and paid out the money. Mr. Hanna's attention was attracted by the amount. He thought it a large sum to pay for a trip to New York and return. He called the notice of several persons to the order and pointed out the exorbitant charge allowed by the commissioners. Judge Martindale was one of the persons to whom it was shown. Shortly after, through the Journal, he censured the commissioners for allowing the bill and went over to the court house to see what they had to say about it. Commissioner Worman told the judge that he was in error regarding that bill of Mr. Hodgson's. He said that he accompanied Mr. H. to New York and he knew his expenses were only $53.96. Moriarty was present during this conversation. Martindale said he had seen the order and that it was for $153.96. It was then suggested that they go to the treasurer's office and see the order. Martindale and Worman went together. Moriarty, uninvited, followed them. There they saw John L. Hanna. He informed them the order was for $53.96. Worman insisted that it was for $53.96. Hanna said he knew better, and called for the order. It was missing. Worman asked Moriarty the amount, and he received the answer that it was $53.96. (It appeared then that after Hanna had carried the original order for a day or two he put it.

received the answer that it was $53.96. (It appeared then that after Hanna had carried the original order for a day or two he put it back in the safe. Moriarty was employed by Treasurer Hanway to register the redeemed orders, and this order, with a large number of others, had been taken home by him. In this way the order gets away from the treasurer and into Moriarty's from the treasurer and into Moriarty's hands.) Hanna became provoked. Said Moriarty had the order and should bring it in. M. said he had it at home, and would go and get it. Worman, Hanna and Martindale waited his return. This was about two months after the filing of Mr. Hodgson's claim with the commissioners. He returned in half an hour, briuging an order numbered 17,227, calling for $53.96. This he said was the original. Hanna said it was not. The original order was sixty days old. He called the notice of the gentlemen to the fact that the ink on this order was not yet dry. Commissioner Worman said it could not be the order as it was on a new blank that they had from the printer man said it could not be the order as it was on a new blank that they had from the printeronly two or three days before—knowing it by a black border. The old blanks had a green border. He then went to the commissioners' office, followed by Moriarty. Worman says he there said to Moriarty. "You drew $153.96. The case is a plain one and it's onto you. There's no use to deny it." Moriarty said "yes I did get the money and It's the first and only time. I will make it all right. What shall I do?" Worman said he could make him no promises—could give him no advice. Told him to go to his friends for counsel. This is the testimony given on trial after months of delay. The defense made no contradiction to any of these facts and in this shape it was left by arreement of any of these facts and in this shape it was left by agreement of Prosecutor Heller and Moriarty's attorneys, Hon. Samuel H. Buskirk and John S. Duncan, Esq., to Judge Edward C. Buskirk to decide, a jury being dispensed with. He gave his decision yesterday, as announced in The News, declaring William C. Moriarty not guilty. not guilty.

The following is the full text:

The state of Indiana vs. William C. Moriarty, The state of Indiana vs. William C. Moriarty, forgery.

The defendant is indicted for the forging and uttering of an auditor's warrant, with the intent of defrauding Marion county and Wm. Sproule.

Forgery is the fraudulent making of a false writing which, if genuine, would apparently be of some legal efficacy. (2 Bishop, 523.)

Forgery is the false making of a note or other instrument with intent to defraud. A note or other instrument may be falsely made eitner by putting on it the name of a person who does not exist or by putting on it the name of a one in existence, without his consent. (2 Leach Crown Law, 785.)

The defendant was the chief deputy in the auditor's office of Marion county, with authority to sigg the name of the auditor to every warrant which was ordered to be issued by the board of commissioners.

It necessarily follows that if the auditor would not be guilty of forgery in signing his name to a warrant that was not ordered to be issued by the commissioners, his deputy would not.

Would the auditor be any more guilty of forgery in signing his name to such a warrant, even with an illegal intention, than if he had signed his name to a check on a bank in which he knew he had no receive and estime some one to each it? in signing his name to such a warrant, even with an illegal intention, than if he had signed his name to a check on a bank in which he knew he had no money, and getting some one to cash it?

Can a defendant be found guity of forgery in signing his own name to any instrument; or where he is duly authorized to sign the name? We have fulled, after a most diligent search of authorities in the state library, to find a single decision, American or English, bearing directly on this point. I have, after mature thought, come to the conclusion, upon principle, that it is not forgery; and that is the only legal question that is presented to the court in this case.

It is shown by the evidence that the warrant was issued for $153.90, and that entirely precluded the idea that it was originally issued for $55.30, and afterwards changed to $153.90. If that had been the fact there would be no doubt of the act being forgery.

If the defendant is guilty of another offense, that is no reason why he should be convicted of an offense that he is not guilty of. If the transaction is one not covered by any criminal statute of this state, it is not the fault of the prosecuting attorney or this court. The next legislature should pass a statute making such acts a felony.

There is another question in the case upon which the defendant is entitled to be ensett of the doubt—upon the fact whether he wrote or signed the warrant in question. Mr. John Hanna was the only witness that testified to be seeing the warrant, and the question was not saked him in whose humber signed the warrant was. Mr. Warman was the only witness that testified to be even the point. He did not say anything to the defendant admitted that he got the money.

I can not say from the evidence, beyond a reasonable doubt, that Mr. Sprouls himself did not sign his own name to the warrant, but he accused him of getting the money on it, and defendant admitted that he got the money in the admitted that he got the money.

I can not say from the evidence, beyond a reasonable doubt, forgery. On the evidence it appears that he made this order originally for $153.96 instead made this order originally for $153.96 instead of for the true amount.

The record's in the auditor's office show that it was drawn for $33.96. The testimony of the witnesses shows that it was raised to $153.96. Moriarty himself confessed the forgery and Hon. Edward C. Buskirk finds him not guilty. Moriarty has relatives who have political influence and is himself a political. Judge Buskirk is a candidate for renomination and election to the office he now holds. It is not likely that a clearer case of forgery will come up in the Marion county criminal court during the next 20 years.

The Country for Greenbackers.
[Havanna letter.]

Immediately after being landed at the hotel, two of our party went into a convenient bar-room, had two drinks of brandy, laid down a one dollar greenback, and received two dollars, Cuban currency, and received two dollars, Cuban currency, in return. It was encouraging and calculated to lead to exhileration. It seemed to open up a new and enchanting road to wealth. They received two drinks of brandy and for change double the nominal money tendered in payment. The brandy was only fifteen cents a drink, and one dollar in greenbacks is worth about $2.25 in Cuban currency.

A woman applied to the township trustee this morning to put her where she could not get morphine which had got to be the bane of her existence.

Mr. Keeley, the pedestrian, was called away yesterday by the illness of a relative, and the complimentary ball to have been given last night for his benefit was post-poned.

Will Brouse, sone of the township assessor, D. W. Brouse, fell from the fence at the ball park yesterday, and was seriously injurd about the head. He is recovering to-day, however.

Marriage licenses were issued to Theodore Woerner and Katie Withelm, Samuel Hen-son and Rebecca McGaw, Charles T. Wat-son and Jennie E. Rairdon, Aleck Buchanan and Sarah Morgan.

When Shaffer knocked the ball over the fence yesterday, it came down on the head of a fellow who was viewing the national game at short range. He won't be able to see it at short range for some time.

THE BLUES AND THE WHITES.

An Exciting Conflict—The Former Win the Game and then let it go by Default -How it all Happened.

—How it all Happened.

The game of base ball yesterday, the opening of the league season, was a sore disappointment to the friends of the Indianapolis club. Prior to the game, the home club was the favorite, not only with those who had no pecuniary interest in the game, but in the pool-box as well, and the feeling that it was to prove victor was not dispelled until the last haif of the last inning, which made the disappointment all the keener. The weather was all that could be asked, and about 1,500 persons witnessed the game.

At exactly 4 o'clock, amid an almost painful hush from the crowd, Larkin sent the first ball of the season over the plate. A second ball of the season over the plate. A second was pitched and then a third, which Quest "fell on to" with his bat, in a sharp, quick hit to third, and scattered away to first to save himself. He beat the ball a couple of Hell on to wish his bat, in a sharp, quick hit to third, and scattered away to first to save himself. He beat the ball a couple of seconds, and when the crowd was assured that he was safe, their pent up feelings found vent in a "Hoosier yell." Nelson followed with a tip to Harbridge, who handed it down to Start so quick that Quest was left by the double play, and it looked like a 0 for the Blues. Clapp drove a high short outfield ball over third base and took first and a high throw over second by Harbridge in attempting to cut him off, gave him that base. Hallinan and Remsen ran to back up second and between them they let the ball roll clear down to the ball pen while Clapp traveled home p. d. q. And then the yell that rent the air as the figure "1" went up on the score board for the Blues! For the Chicago's, after Nolan had given Hallinan his base on called balls, he pitched a wild one which hit Flint's hand and caromed off to the right, rolling under the benches. Flint had to climb down between the benches for it and before he had reached it Hallinan had travelled around from first to home. Thus the game stood tied to the fifth inning. A feature of the fourth inning for the Blues in the field was a beautiful long field fly from Anson's bat, which McKelvey took at arm's length on a "dead run." At the bat, this inning, Shaffer welcomed his old friend Larkin by knocking the ball clear over the right, field fence, and at first sight apparently over the I., C. & L. freight depot. Shaffer took second base and sat down on it before the ball came back, and the audience just stood right up and howled like a mob.

over the I., C. & L. freight depot. Shaffer took second base and sat down on it before the ball came back, and the audience just stood right up and howled like a mob.

In the fifth inning Ferguson for the Chicagos started off with a hard drive past the short stop. Larkin sent one over second, on which Ferguson traveled to third, and here came one of the most exasperating errors of the game. Ferguson was standing on third when Quest, to whom the ball had been fielded, was seized with some netion which caused him to fire away at Williamson with the ball, throwing it fully ten feet over his head. Ferguson naturally went home, and the score stood 2 to 1 for Chicago.

In the sixth inning Flint and Croft got bases on safe hits, when Shaffer stepped up with the willow and smiled at Larkin. The right fielder immediately took a walk for the fence and plastered himself there. But Shaffer promptly sent the ball to left field this time, putting it over the fielder's head out among the carriages, and Flint and Croft came home while Shaffer wart to out among the carriages, and Flint and Croft came home, while Shaffer went to second, and the audience howled and yelled and cheered, and refused to be satisfied.

and cheered, and refused to be satisfied.

In the ninth Larkin wouldn't let Shaffer hit, preferring to give him his base on called balls. He stole second and would have made third on an overthrow by Harbridge, but Anson intentionally got in his way and held him. Nolan came to the bat and sent a long right-fielder which struck the high fence a foot or two from the top; on this Shaffer came home and Nolan took second. The game for the Blues ended here. It was well sarned nda looked safe 4 to 2. Then the Whites came for the Blues ended here. It was well earned nda looked safe 4 to 2. Then the Whites came in to win. Start led off with a "crowder" to right field which Williams fell upon just as he reached it; Anson followed with a hit to center field. Ferguson crowded a ball to Williamsoh which he could't get in time to field to first. Start came home on this hit, and then Cassidy reached first by Williamson's. Harbridge wound up the game by sending a hard hit to center, bringing in the winning runs.

SHORT STOPS.

SHORT STOPS.

The feature of the play yesterday was the excellent pitching on both sides and the good support afforded by the catchers. The batting was first class, Shaffer especially distinguishing himself. Larkin is an old friend of his; he made five home runs off of him last year, and nearly twice as many base hits as any other man in the country.

Some disposition was manifested to blame Williamson for the result of the game, but it was unjust. It is any other man in the country.

Some disposition was manifested to blame Williamson for the result of the game, but it was unjust. It is doubtful whether he is chargeable for more than one error, as Ferguson claims that his and Start's hits were base hits. Williamson's record at third base is unsurpassed, and he will vindicate it before the week is out.

Meacham was heard to remark at the ninth inning: "But let's play it out" inning: "But let's play it out."

The Blues fielded better yesterday than the Whites. But the Whites feel the best today.

It was a nervous game.
Nolan never pitched better.
Shaffer won the batting medal.
The Blues had the most base hits and the most earned runs.

most earned runs.

Williamson was made the scape goat.
After demonstrating that they could whip the Whites by making the most base hits and the most earned runs and doing the best playing, the Blues considerately allowed hhem to win the game. This is all very well for courtesy, but the Whites must take notice that hereafter the Blues will not be so polite.

Both Craft and Flint played magnificently and without error.

Complaint is made that the base ball games are held until 4 o'clock to accommodate two or three banker's clerks, against the wish of hundreds of patrons of the game, who look upon 3 p. m. as the proper hour.

In Cincinnati, the game between the Cincinnatis and Milwaukees resulted 6 to 4 in favor of the Cincinnatis by an exceedingly hard-fought game, the chances being about equal all the way through.

At Providence, the Bostons beat the home club 1 to 0 in the closest and most doubtful game of any of the league contests yesterday, the winning run being secured in the seventh inning by lucky batting.

An Effort to Put It Into the Hands of a Re ceiver Again,

On Monday last, April 29, 1878, an injunction was granted by the Hon. C. B. Smith, judge of the Champaign circuit court of Illinois, against the Wabash rallway company, to restrain it from paying out any of its earnings except for running expenses, taxes, rentals and renewals, and the interest that may be due on the company's first mortgage bonds, and especially enjoining the company to refrain from the payment of any interest falling due May I, 1878, on the bonds secured by the second and consolidated mortgages; and also especially enjoining the payment of any part of the debt secured by what is called the "Seney mortgage."

"Seney mortgage."

The injunction was granted on the application of a party claiming to be the holder and owner of divers of the bonds of the company, the interest on which is in default since and including 1875, and it charged that the company is misanyropristing its earnings. since and including 1875, and it charged that the company is misappropriating its earnings in the payment of demands posterior to his,
and in making unjust and fraudulent discriminations in such misappropriations.
It is also charged that the company is running behind, and that its entire property is an inadequate security for the payment of its mortgage debts, some of which mature next November.

A motion is entered for the appointment

A motion is entered for the appointment of a receiver, and this motion, together with the argument on the motion for injunction will be presented before the same judge at chambers in Champaign City, Ill., on the 11th day of May, 1878, of which notice has been given to the railway company.

Internal Improvement Bonds Again.
The state executive board met at the gov

The state executive board met at the governor's office this morning, attorney-general Buskirk acting as president, secretary of state Neff as secretary. Mr. John R. Wilson appeared as attorney for Henry Coghlen, of London, England, holder of 23 state internal improvement bonds of $1,000 running 25 years, demanding payment of bond No. 283, dated July 1, 1836, payable at Merchants' bank, city of New York, with attached coupons representing semi-sampal interest. The dated July 1, 1836, payable at Merchants bank, city of New York, with attached coupons representing semi-annual interest. The bond was due July 1, 1861, and is silent as to rate of interest after maturity. This bond is presented as a representative of all the bonds, and the action taken on this decides the action in the others, and interest is demanded from date of maturity to the present time at 7 per cent. The board has heretofore agreed to pay the bonds at the rate of six per cent. per annum from maturity to February 13th, 1873. Col. Shaw, treasurer of state, moved that this $1,000 bond be paid with interest at 6 per cent. from date to February 13, 1873. This makes the payment, principal and interest, amount to $4,051.63. The resolution was passed. Mr. Wilson, for Mr. Coghlen, demanded a sum, which with principal and interest amounts to $5,130.19 on each $1,000 bond, to April 26, 1878. Mr. Wilson submitted an agreement citing authorities sustaining his demand for the rate of interest demanded by his principal after date of maturity. As the bonds are made payable in New York, he holds that the makers of the paper shall pay the rate prevailing in the state where payable, unless the rate of interest is specifically expressed. The argument of Mr. Wilson has been submitted to Attorney General Buskirk for an opinion. According to the calculation of the board, $93,287.49 will pay the bonds. Mr. Coghlen's demand is for nearly $118,500, a difference of some magnitude.

County Board of Education.

A meeting of the county board of educa-tion was held yesterday, at the office of county Superintendent Harlan, at which conbusiness was transacted. It was decided not to make any changes in text books this year, and to entrust the duty of selecting teachers to the trustees, instead of leaving it to school meetings. The superin-tendent was authorized to raise the grade of tendent was authorized to raise the grade of examination for teachers licenses to that of other counties The maximum salary of teachers of ungraded schools was fixed at $2,25 per day; minimum $1,75. The following were the average daily salaries paid the past year in the several townships. Pike, $2,26½; Washington $2,22; Lawrence $2,21½; Warren $2,16%; Franklin $2,32; Perry $2,31½; Decatur $2,40; Wayne $2,33; Center $2,45. Assault with Intent to Kill.

Early this morning Charles G. Parker and Reboni Giascomo, fruit vendors, between whom bad feeling has for some time existed, whom has recing has for some time existed, met on Kentucky avenue, and a collision ensued. Knives were used, and fair Italia's son fared badly. One cheek was laid open by a neat gash, and the point of his assailant's weapon punctured the abdomen on both sides. Parker received only a slight scratch, but was arrested by officer Kitzmiller and incarcerated on a charge of assault and battery with intent to kill. Giacomo's wounds were attended to at the city dispensary and are not attended to at the city dispensary and are not serious. A rumor of a murder by one circus attache of another grew out of the affair.

The wholesale merchants of the city, headed by Andrew Wallace, sent a dispatch to Senators McDonald and Voorhees this morning, urging the immediate repeal of the bankrupt act. Every wholesale house on Meridian street signed it.

The trial of the Cincinnati trio, Travis-Weaver and Daugherty has been postponed till next week. Acquittal and postponement seems to be Judge Buskirk's strong points. He probably has to hunt up the principle of the law.

If Judge Buskirk thinks he did a good thing for himself or the democratic party by acquitting Moriarty, let him disguise nimself and stroll through the court house. He will hear some unbiased opinions that will do his heart good.

Those five-sixths of the people who are penuiless and have nothing else to do than spend their money in attending circuses, were on the streets this morning and filled the tents this afternoon. They make a big crowd.

DOUBTLESS most of our old citizens can remember the pleasant and jovial landlord, Uncle Billy Marsh, who established and opened the Galt House in Cincinnati, in 1836, and kept the same until 1864, and who has now put his sons and Mr. H.
